

Please leave the Wisconsin NO-CALL LIST alone. It has made a tremendous difference in my life. I demand a right to peace and privacy in my own home. I shouldn't have to tolerate interruptions to my meals or to my relaxation time after a long day's work, particularly from computer-generated calls where there is no one is "there" when I answer the phone.

In addition, it is to the vendor's benefit to not waste time calling me. I have not, and never will, purchase a product, take part in a survey, contribute to an organization, etc., just because someone called me at home. I make my own decisions about when and where to purchase products and make donations.

This is not a freedom-of-speech issue. A seller's freedom of speech should never override my right to privacy and peace in my home. Making an unwanted call to my home must always be a violation of the "no trespassing" sign that I have posted through the NO-CALL LIST.
